

2021 - THE YEAR IN FASCIST & FAR-RIGHT EXTREMIST VIOLENCE

REPORT BY THE
INTERNATIONAL VIOLENT
HATE CRIMES RESEARCH PROJECT

ANTIFA
INTERNATIONAL

Introduction

2021 was the fifth year of the International Violent Hate Crimes Project. Established in 2017 by Antifa International, the Project aims to document and record incidents of violence committed by bigots, fascists, and the extreme right around the world. Over the course of 2021, we recorded:

- 120 shootings
- 30 arson attacks
- 107 stabbings
- 442 beatings
- 13 chemical weapons attacks
- 12 bombings
- 22 vehicle attacks
- 4 kidnappings
- 11 sexual assaults
- 1 acid attack
- and 61 thwarted terror plots

These 823 attacks killed 442 people and injured 1731 others. We recorded both the highest number of violent incidents and casualties since starting this project in 2017.

Definitions & Parameters

The two main challenges we had to contend with for this project were defining what would we consider to be “violence” and how we would decide if a violent act was motivated by bigotry, fascism, or far-right extremism. We have defined “violence” as any act that caused physical harm to a person; any act in which included a credible threat of physical harm to a person; or any act in that was likely to cause a person to suffer physical harm as a direct or indirect result (for example, an arson attack on an occupied building). This definition omitted acts of property damage and vandalism where people were not put into potential physical jeopardy as a result.

It is notoriously difficult to ascertain which acts of violence were motivated by an attacker’s bigotry, fascism, or involvement in far-right extremism. There is no consensus on how to do so. For our project, each case was examined through the same lens using the anti-fascist slogan “respect existence or expect resistance” as a guide, we tried to determine as accurately as possible whether the target’s identity as part of, membership in, or activity in a group of people normally targeted by bigots, fascists, and the far right was the most likely motivation for the attack.

Essentially, for each incident we asked ourselves if the victim(s) would have been targeted for attack if they did not belong to such a group. In some cases, we considered whether it was reasonable to conclude that the attacker’s involvement in fascist/right-wing extremism would have led them to resort to violence instead of using other avenues that someone not involved in such extremism would have chosen - this was especially true for attacks against people close to the attacker (such as family members) or against other fascists, or against targets who did not fit into categories one would normally see as a potential target for hate-motivated violence. It is important to note that we excluded violent hate crimes committed by state actors (such as military or law enforcement agencies) from our data set.

Methodology

We monitored reports of violent hate crimes in several countries. These reports came from the news media, advocacy organizations, and other sources. We compiled the reports into our chronology and map[1] on a weekly basis.

We would like to acknowledge the value of the research compiled by groups such as ProPublica, the Human Rights Campaign, Tell Mama, Mut Gegen Rechte Gewalt, Bell Tower News, factchecker.in, the Never Again Association, Transgender Europe, Luigi Mastrodonato, the Trans Lives Matter project, and the Observatorio Internacional de Estudios Sobre Terrismo- all of which did outstanding work documenting violent hate crimes around the world that proved extremely helpful to our own research.

Limitations

While we believe that this report is the most comprehensive chronicle of violent hate crimes worldwide in 2021, it is by no means anywhere near a complete listing of bigoted/fascist/far right violence and should not be taken as such. Instead, we believe it best serves as a sample of the level of violence committed nearly every single day last year - a snapshot of how serious the problem of hate-motivated violence is in the world today.

Because our research collective is small, under-funded, and run entirely by volunteers, we were limited to what stories we could find being published by news media and by advocacy organizations, which means that our data does not capture violent hate crimes that were not reported by either or that we simply did not come across. The scope of our research was further limited to sources written in languages we understood. Although we've improved in this regard since beginning our project, we still fail to document violent hate crimes in entire regions and countries that we are unfamiliar with and do not know the language(s) of.

There is no doubt that the 823 incidents of bigoted, fascist, and extreme-right violence we documented in 2021 are only a fraction of the number of incidents that happen every day around the world. It is our hope that by documenting and describing what our resources and limitations allow us to, the urgency of responding to this issue will be impossible to ignore.

Findings

While the 823 incidents of bigoted, fascist, and extreme-right violence we documented in 2021 was nearly statistically equal to the 813 incidents we documented the previous year, this still meant that 2021 saw the highest number of hate-motivated violent incidents our project has documented over five years. Those 823 incidents were also far more dangerous than in any previous year, with a death toll up 36% over last year and 45% more injuries reported than in 2020. The record-high incident count, death toll, and number of people injured makes 2021 the worst year for hate-motivated violence since we began documenting such incidents back in 2017.

We believe that a big reason for this increase in both the amount of violence and the damage resulting from it has to do with how far-right actors were more inclined to organizing mob violence in 2021 than in previous years. Beginning with the January 6 attack on the U.S. capitol and fueled throughout the year by Hindu extremists in India, xenophobic riots in Turkey, homophobic attacks on LGBTQ+ events and institutions in Europe, and by COVID-19 conspiracy demonstrations globally, 2021 saw more coordinated violence by large groups of hate-motivated actors than ever before.

These mob attacks also explain a shift in who was targeted by hate-motivated violence in 2021. For the first time, ever, the main category of persons subjected to far-right/fascist violence were police officers, who made up a quarter of the people targeted in far-right attacks. This represented a 16-fold increase in police targeted by violence when compared to 2020. Eighty-six percent of police injured or killed in far right violence in 2021 were harmed during just four incidents in 2021:

- January 6 the U.S. capitol riot and insurrection, injuring 140 police officers.
- May 16: a mob fight between far-right football hooligans and the police, injuring 36 police officers.
- October 9: when members of the Italian fascist party Forza Nuova broke off from an anti-vaccination rally and stormed the offices of a labour union and a hospital, injuring 38 police officers throughout the day.
- October 27: In a clash between the banned Pakistani TLP party and police outside of Islamabad, killing four police officers and injuring 263 others.

2021 also saw a 21% increase in attacks on journalists, which was again explained by the increase in mob violence. Nearly all of the journalists were subjected to violence while covering mass demonstrations. A single incident - a July 5 attack on the Pride offices in Tblisi, Georgia by a hundreds-strong homophobic mob - accounts for roughly half of all journalists assaulted in 2021.

As in 2020, mass casualty attacks against Muslims were another key reason for the increase in victims of hate-motivated violence in 2021. Specifically, two Islamic State suicide bombings in Afghanistan in October 2021 which killed 141 Shia Muslims and injured a further 220 others accounted for three-quarters of the violence directed at Muslims that we documented last year.

Anti-semitic violence more than doubled in 2021, with a large spike in May spurred by the conflict between Israel and Palestine, but these numbers were still a third less than the number of anti-semitic violent incidents we documented in 2019. Twenty of the 27 Christians injured or killed in hate-motivated violence last year were injured in a single suicide bombing by Islamic extremists in Makassar, Indonesia.

Our hope that the sudden increase in attacks targeting Asians in 2020 would diminish in 2021 were dashed. Attacks on Asians actually increased 29%. Once again, New York City was the epicentre of anti-Asian violence, with more than a third of all such attacks we recorded in 2021 happening in that city; the borough of Manhattan was the setting for a quarter of all anti-Asian attacks globally last year.

Findings cont'd.

Every year since we started this project, trans men and women bore the brunt of hate-motivated violence - 2021 was no different. The 185 trans men and women murdered in 2021 represented 42% of all the people murdered in hate crimes that we documented. Those 185 murders represent a threefold increase over the number of murdered trans people we documented in 2020. When trans men and women were assaulted in 2021, they survived the attack just 6% of the time.

Violence against both anti-fascists and Black Lives Matter activists was down 31% in 2021 when compared to the previous year. This was largely due to the decline in the number of BLM protests staged in 2021, which meant fewer points of confrontation or targets of opportunity for those violently opposed to both movements. This was also apparent in the reduction of vehicle attacks – down by two-thirds compared to 2020, when we recorded 32 separate attempts to run down BLM activists.

While vehicle attacks were down in 2021, the year marked five-year highs for hate-motivated stabbings and beatings. There was also a record number of foiled terror plots last year, with police seizing weapons caches or arresting bigots on a weekly basis, before plans to commit assassinations and mass murders could be carried out.

Where Was Hate-Motivated Violence Most Frequent?

For the fourth year running New York City saw more incidents of hate-motivated violence than any other place in the world. The 67 attacks we documented in New York City represent 8% of all incidents we recorded globally last year. This is more than double the number of attacks we recorded occurring in that city in 2020 and over nine times the average number of hate-motivated violent incidents in any city or region with three or more such incidents occurring in 2021. In 42 of those attacks, Asians were targeted, which means that over a third of all anti-Asian violence committed worldwide in 2021 happened in New York City.

The French city of Angers experienced the highest amount of hate-motivated violence relative to population (two attacks per 100,000 people). In these instances fascists physically attacked antifascist, feminist, and lesbian counter-protestors in separate incidents.

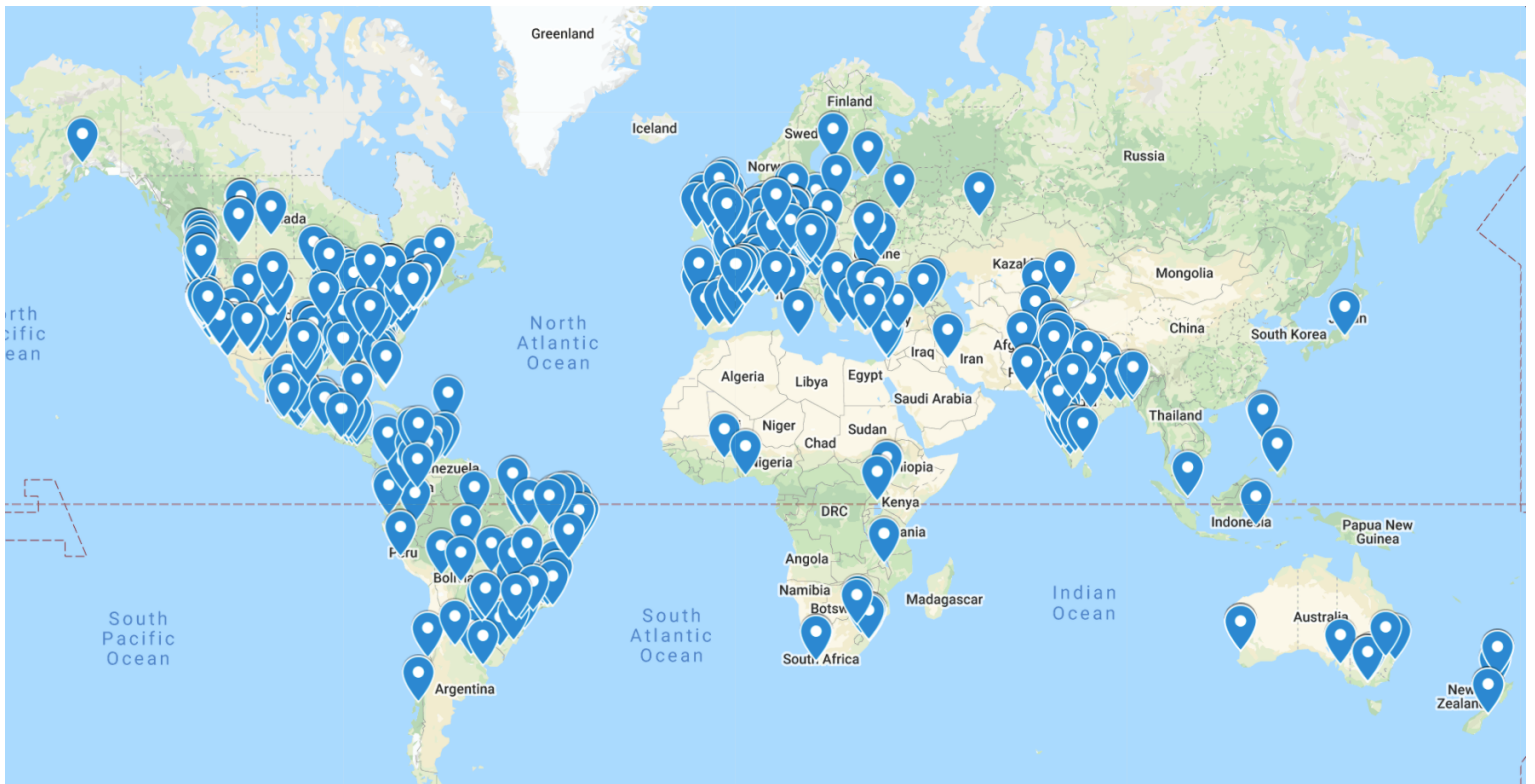

The ten areas experiencing the highest levels of hate-motivated violence relative to population in 2021 were:

- Angers, France (1.96 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Washington, DC (1.64 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Liverpool, UK (.99 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Seattle, WA. (.79 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- London, Canada (.78 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Portland, OR. (.76 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- New York, NY (.76 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Amsterdam, Netherlands (.52 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Paris, France (.47 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Birmingham, UK (.45 incidents per 100,000pop.)

One photographer was chased by Proud Boys and beaten to the ground. [1]

January 1, 2021: Two Palestinians were attacked by a mob of far-right Israeli settlers in East Jerusalem. Upon seeing the mob the victims tried to turn their car around and get away. “I reversed my car to get away from them. One settler approached me and asked me for a cigarette, and when he heard Quranic verses playing from the car speakers, he called the others, who attacked the vehicle, shouting ‘Arabs, Arabs,’” one of the victims said. He got out of the car and asked his brother to take the wheel while he attempted to prevent the crowd from attacking the vehicle. “When I got out of the car, a settler attempted to stab me with a knife in my back, but he missed. I chased him but was chased back by a larger number of settlers. My brother managed to reverse the car, and we managed to flee,” the man said. [2]

Mahaffey becomes enraged and screams racist abuse at her, claims to be a police officer, and threatens to shoot her before exiting the bus. Mahaffey is caught by police a few blocks away and charged with hate crimes. [8]

January 4, 2021: A stolen car with a dog inside and what looked like a bomb attached to it is left in the parking lot of a Queens, New York shopping mall. 22-year-old Louis Shenker - a frequent guest on the Alex Jones show - turns himself into police two days later. Based on the fact that the car also had Black Lives Matter signs taped to it, police theorize that Shenker was attempting a “false flag” operation against BLM. [9]

January 5, 2021: Proud Boys and other Trump supporters come to Washington DC ahead of a large protest the next day against the Trump's election loss, and attack police. Several people were arrested, facing illegal firearms charges and assault. [10]

Police remove two IEDs after regaining control of the building. Four fascists die (one shot by Capitol Hill police as she and others tried to smash their way into chambers; one when she is trampled to death by fellow insurrectionists; and two others from cardiac events) along with one police officer the following day, who succumbs to injuries he sustained after being smashed in the head with a fire extinguisher. The International Violent Hate Crimes project is a production of Antifa International - an international anti-fascist social media collective. Since 2014, Antifa International has broadcast news and information about anti-fascism and promoted the tenets of anti-fascism via social media to an audience of over 85,000 followers. You can find Antifa International on Instagram, Mastodon, Tumblr, Twitter, and YouTube.

In 2017, Antifa International began monitoring and documenting hate-motivated violence worldwide via The International Violent Hate Crimes project. We believe it to be the most globally-comprehensive research project of its kind. We do this work as volunteers and without funding, which limits our capabilities and the scope of our research.

If you would like to support this project, we are accepting contributions at: bit.ly/intlhatecrimesresearch.

If you are a researcher interested in collaborating with us, please get in touch! antifaintl@protonmail.com
