

2022 - THE YEAR IN FASCIST & FAR-RIGHT EXTREMIST VIOLENCE

ANTIFA INTERNATIONAL

REPORT BY THE
INTERNATIONAL VIOLENT
HATE CRIMES RESEARCH PROJECT

Introduction

2022 was the sixth year of the International Violent Hate Crimes Project. Established in 2017 by Antifa International, the project aims to document and record incidents of violence committed by bigots, fascists, and the extreme right around the world. Over the course of 2022, we recorded:

- 112 shootings
- 19 arson attacks
- 55 stabbings
- 218 beatings (including 52 mob beatings*)
- 6 chemical weapons attacks
- 2 bombings
- 18 vehicle attacks
- 5 kidnappings
- 8 sexual assaults
- 2 acid attacks
- 8 torture incidents
- and 24 thwarted terror plots

These attacks killed 366 people and injured 399 others.

(a new category we tracked in 2022, we define a "mob beating" as one involving three or more assailants)*

Definitions & Parameters

The two main challenges we had to contend with for this project were defining what would we consider to be "violence" and how we would decide if a violent act was motivated by bigotry, fascism, or far-right extremism. We have defined "violence" as any act that caused physical harm to a person; any act which included a credible threat of physical harm to a person; or any act that was likely to cause a person to suffer physical harm as a direct or indirect result (for example, an arson attack on an occupied building). This definition omitted acts of property damage and vandalism where people were not put into potential physical jeopardy as a result.

It is notoriously difficult to ascertain which acts of violence were motivated by an attacker's bigotry, fascism, or involvement in far-right extremism. There is no consensus on how to do so. For our project, each case was examined through the same lens using the anti-fascist slogan "respect existence or expect resistance" as a guide. We tried to determine as accurately as possible whether the target's identity as part of, membership in, or activity in a group of people normally targeted by bigots, fascists, and the far right was the most likely motivation for the attack. Essentially, for each incident we asked ourselves if the victim(s) would have been targeted for attack if they did not belong to such a group. In some cases, we considered whether it was reasonable to conclude that the attacker's involvement in fascist/right-wing extremism would have led them to resort to violence instead of using other avenues that someone not involved in such extremism would have chosen - this was especially true for attacks against people close to the attacker (such as family members) or against other fascists, or against targets who did not fit into categories one would normally see as a potential target for hate-motivated violence. It is important to note that we excluded violent hate crimes committed by state actors (such as military or law enforcement agencies) from our data set.

Methodology

We monitored reports of violent hate crimes in several countries. These reports came from the news media, advocacy organizations, and other sources. We compiled the reports into our chronology and map[1] on a weekly basis.

We would like to acknowledge the value of the research compiled by groups such as ProPublica, the Human Rights Campaign, Tell Mama, Mut Gegen Rechte Gewalt, Belltower News, factchecker.in, the Never Again Association, Transgender Europe, Luigi Mastrodonato, the Trans Lives Matter project, the Observatorio Internacional de Estudios Sobre Terrismo and Hindutva Watch - all of which did outstanding work documenting violent hate crimes around the world that proved extremely helpful to our own research.

Limitations

While we believe that this report is the most comprehensive chronicle of violent hate crimes worldwide in 2022, it is by no means anywhere near a complete listing of bigoted/fascist/far-right violence and should not be taken as such. Instead, we believe it best serves as a sample of the level of violence committed nearly every single day last year - a snapshot of how serious the problem of hate-motivated violence is in the world today.

Our project, like all research into hate-motivated violence, suffers the limitation of only having data on reported hate crimes. The reasons people choose to not report a hate crime are complex, but the effect on research into hate-motivated violence is very real. It has been suggested that unreported hate crimes can be as much as four-to-nine times greater than the number of reported hate crimes, depending on factors like time period, geography, and the targeted group in question. If this holds true, the incidents we've documented are but a small fraction of the actual amount of hate-motivated violence that occurs every day.

Compounding this is the fact that many hate crimes are only publicly reported weeks or even months after they occurred. We regularly see reports of additional hate-motivated violent incidents long after our data is published.

Another major limitation to our research has been our capacity to do the research. Because our research collective is small, underfunded, and run entirely by volunteers, we are limited to what stories we can find being published by news media and advocacy organizations. This means that our data does not capture violent hate crimes that were not reported by either or that we simply did not come across. The scope of our research was further limited to sources written in languages we understood. Although we've improved in this regard since beginning our project, we still fail to document violent hate crimes in entire regions and countries that we are unfamiliar with and do not know the language(s) of.

There is no doubt that the 477 incidents of bigoted, fascist, and extreme-right violence we documented in 2022 are only a tiny fraction of the number of incidents that happen every day around the world. It is our hope that by documenting and describing what our resources and limitations allow us to, the urgency of responding to this issue will be impossible to ignore.

Findings

The 477 incidents of bigoted, fascist, and extreme-right violence that we documented in 2022 marked a decline of slightly more than 40% over the number of hate-motivated violent incidents we documented in either 2021 or 2020. 2022 seemed to return us to the numbers we were seeing in 2019 (when we recorded 584 incidents) and 2018 (when we recorded 388 incidents). There was a corresponding drop in the number of people reported injured in hate-motivated violence – 396 that we noted in 2022 (a 73% drop compared to the number of people injured in 2021). In fact, we recorded fewer people injured in hate-motivated violence in 2022 than in any of the four years prior.

What explains this sudden drop in hate-motivated violence? We think there are many factors that may have contributed to this:

- 2022 was the first full year where Donald Trump was no longer in the White House and also the first full year of his ban on Twitter, Facebook, and Instagram. Other social researchers (1; 2) have documented the correlation between Trump's amplified rhetoric during his time as President of the United States and an increase in hate crimes. So the decline in hate-motivated violence in 2022 – a year after Trump was out of office and cut off from mainstream social media access – seems to buttress these previous findings.
- 2022 was also the year when most of the world began removing COVID restrictions. In 2021, we saw far-right infiltration of the burgeoning anti-COVID public health mandate movement catalyze major acts of mob violence in 2021 and early 2022. However, once mandates were lifted, that movement became much smaller, less-focused, and much more ineffective. While we recorded seven incidents of hate-motivated violence emanating from this movement in the first two months of 2022, we did not see any more beyond that, as rallies dwindled in size.
- Finally, the decline in hate-motivated violence in 2022 may come down to the limitations of our own research project. This past year a key, multilingual volunteer stepped down from his role in the project, leaving us with a gap of coverage over several countries in Europe and of incident reports written in three different languages. It is possible that the level of hate-motivated violence remained unchanged or even heightened in 2022 and we failed to see that because our ability to monitor reports on a global scale was much more limited.

While we did record significantly fewer incidents of hate-motivated violence overall and also saw far fewer people injured in such attacks in 2022, the same, however, cannot be said of the number of people killed. It is true that the 366 homicide victims we documented in 2022 comprised an 18% drop in the number killed in 2021, but 2022 was still our 2nd worst year for hate-motivated violence resulting in deaths. Looking at those deaths in proportion to the number of incidents we documented overall, it becomes clear that hate-motivated violence in 2022 was deadlier than in any other year since we started this research project in 2018 and roughly twice as lethal as it was in the two preceding years. This is possibly explained by an increase in hate-motivated gun violence, with 23% of the hate motivated violence we documented in 2022 involving a shooting – the highest proportion of gun violence we've documented since 2018.

Findings cont'd.

There was good news and bad news concerning hate-motivated violence in 2022. The marked decrease in far-right demonstrations overall meant a corresponding decrease in mob violence, which in turn meant far fewer attacks on journalists and police. Compared to 2021, 2022 saw a fivefold reduction in attacks targeting journalists; where a record-breaking 557 police officers were targeted for far-right violence in 2021, in 2022 we only documented 10 police officers being similarly-targeted.

Just two dozen foiled terror plots motivated by hate and/or orchestrated by hate groups were recorded by our research in 2022 – the lowest number of thwarted plots since 2018. Whether this was due to a diminished capacity by far-right elements to plot terror attacks or because they are becoming better at evading authorities remains to be seen.

Who Was Targeted In Hate-Motivated Attacks?

The good news and bad news extended to data on groups targeted in hate-motivated violence last year. When we began this research project, Asians were rarely targeted for hate-motivated violence, but that changed in 2020, when Donald Trump and other high-profile bigots repeatedly blamed China for the COVID-19 pandemic. Attacks against Asians jumped eightfold that year, with assailants specifically referencing COVID during the attack in nearly half of the cases. In 2021, attacks on Asian increased even further. We are pleased to report that attacks targeting Asians dropped by 65% in 2022. We believe the decline was likely due to Donald Trump no longer having the public platforms he enjoyed previously, combined with the lifting of COVID restrictions in most regions and the pandemic no longer grabbing public attention the way it did in the first two years of the pandemic – all of which contributed to a reduction in the false association of Asians with COVID.

Muslims have been subjected to some of the worst mass-casualty terror attacks we've recorded in our six years of doing this research, but thanks largely to a decline in attacks of that nature, there were fewer Muslims targeted in 2022 than in any of the previous three years. Previously, bombs were a key weapon of choice in attacks on Muslims, but the single pair of bombings we recorded in 2022 reflect the lowest number of hate-motivated bombings we've recorded since the beginning of our research project.

Attacks of Black people and on migrants and refugees were also below the average number of incidents we've documented over the past five years. We recorded the fewest number of attacks targeting lesbian, gay, or bisexual individuals in 2022 than in any of the prior four years.

However, 2022 was a more dangerous year for a number of groups. For the first time in our project's history, trans people were the group most likely to be targeted for violence, with nearly one in four attacks last year targeting trans people. 45% of the people killed in hate attacks in 2022 were trans.

The 54 anti-semitic attacks we documented in 2022 were close to what we've in previously year but proportionately represented a tripling of attacks targeting Jewish people. 44% of those attacks occurred in New York City, with high concentrations of attacks in the Brooklyn neighbourhoods of Crown Heights and Williamsburg – both known for their large populations of Orthodox Jewish residents.

Second to trans people, antifascists were the group most commonly targeted for violence in 2022 (this project defines an "antifascist" as someone who openly or publicly opposed bigotry, hatred, and fascism, including intervenors in hate-motivated attacks). Antifascists were targeted for violence in one in five incidents in 2022 – by far the highest proportion of incidents targeting antifascists that we've recorded since this project's inception in 2017.

Findings cont'd.

Where Was Hate-Motivated Violence Most Frequent?

New York City continues to be the city experiencing the highest amount of hate-motivated attacks in the world. The 54 attacks we documented in the city's five boroughs in 2022 comprised 11% of all hate-motivated violence we tracked globally. As we mentioned above, nearly half of all anti-semitic attacks around the world that we recorded for the year occurred in New York City, primarily in Brooklyn. The city was also the epicenter of anti-Asian violence globally for the second year in a row, with the 16 anti-Asian attacks occurring there in 2022 representing 30% of anti-Asian attacks globally that we documented. Manhattan continues to see the highest concentration of anti-Asian violence, with all but two anti-Asian attacks in NYC situated there. Since we began incidents geographically, New York City has consistently the largest share of hate-motivated violence of any city, anywhere.

The ten areas experiencing the highest levels of hate-motivated violence relative to population in 2022 were:

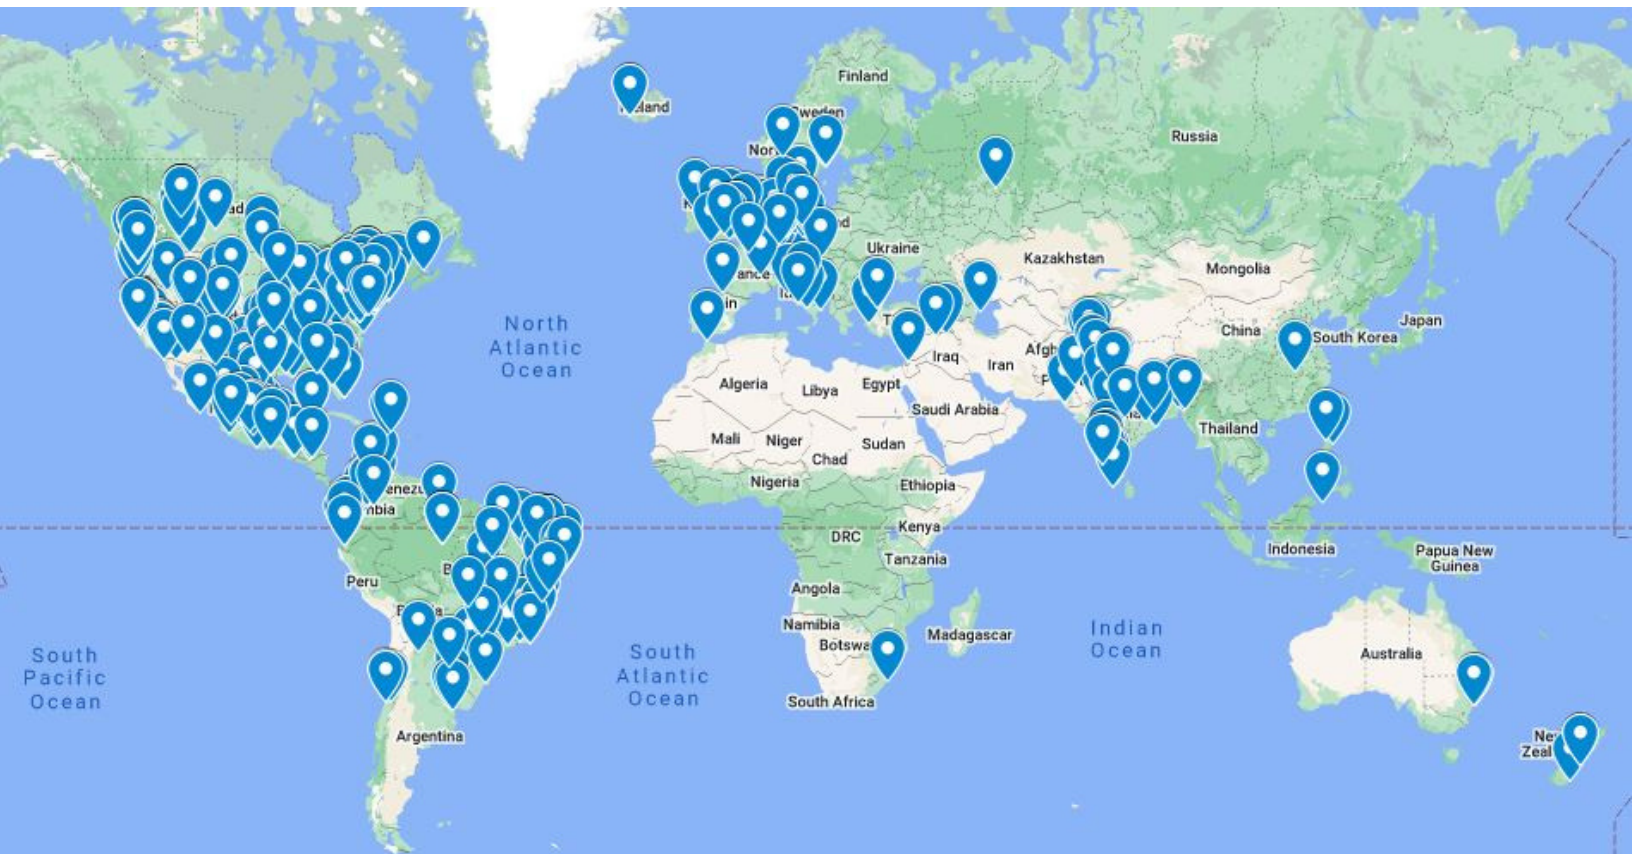

- Washington, D.C., USA (1.02 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Armenia, Colombia (.72 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- New York, NY, USA (.6 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- San Jose, CA, USA (.5 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Mangalore, India (.41 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Edmonton, Canada (.4 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Portland, OR, USA (.27 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- San Francisco, CA, USA (.24 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Tegucigalpa, Honduras (.2 incidents per 100,000pop.)
- Toronto, Canada (.18 incidents per 100,000pop.)

It should be noted that Washington, D.C., New York City both made the top ten list for the second year running while Portland, OR. has been in the top ten three years in a row. The seven other cities make their first appearance in the top ten list in 2022.

December 13, 2022: Four members of the Hindu extremist Bajrang Dal dragged a Muslim man out of the Mangalore, India jewelry store he works in and beat him in the street, accusing him of attempting to start a romantic relationship with a Hindu woman. The four attackers are accompanied by the woman's parents and a police officer, who stands by and does nothing to intervene in the attack. (429)

December 13, 2022: A car bombing by neo-nazis in Fresno, California in the first of a series of six attacks leading to the perpetrator's arrest, the seizure of weapons, bomb-making materials, methamphetamine, and the arrest of four accomplices. (430)

December 14, 2022: The body of 33-year-old trans man Mar'Quis 'MJ' Jackson is found in a Philadelphia, PA. backyard. He had been bludgeoned to death. (431)

December 16, 2022: 42-year-old trans woman and Peruvian national Ariana Diaz Chavez is found strangled to death in her apartment in La Plata, Argentina. (432)

December 16, 2022: An unidentified trans woman is shot in Tijuana, Mexico and left to die on the street. (433)

December 17, 2022: René Estrada is found murdered in his apartment. He had been stabbed, strangled, and tortured. Estrada is the fifth LGBTQI+ person in the Colombian department of Atlantico murdered this year. (434)

December 17, 2022: Eduardo Navarro Perez, 31, was arrested for making anti-semitic remarks towards a 30 year old male before hitting him with his skateboard. The victim was treated on the scene by medics. (435)

December 17, 2022: 19-year-old trans woman Lully Pimentel is shot to death in the streets of Vitória de Santo Antão, Brazil. (436)

December 17, 2022: 27-year-old Latina and trans woman Caelee Love-Light is shot and killed while sitting in a car in Phoenix, AZ. Her killer is found by police in the car with her, suffering from stab wounds that he succumbs to hours later, leading to the theory that Love-Light managed to defend herself in a physical altercation before being shot. (437)

December 18, 2022: A 3-week-old was attacked in Scarborough Park in Christchurch. The baby was taken to hospital and the mother injured after a man allegedly jumped on them as they lay in a tent. The man made racist comments to the family afterwards including "go back to your country" and told them they "can't even speak English". Police told a witness the perpetrator would be charged with a "hate crime with intentions to harm a baby". An 18-year-old was taken into custody. (438)

December 23, 2022: The body of murdered trans woman Sheyla is found dumped on a dirt road outside of Tehuantepec, Mexico. (439)

December 23, 2022: A gunman opened fire in central Paris, killing three Kurdish people and wounding three others. The 69-year-old attacker deliberately targeted a Kurdish cultural centre and shot members of the local community in a plan to "kill non-European foreigners," stemming from his self-described "pathological hatred of migrants." The attacker had just been released from prison after attacking migrants in Paris with a sword the year before. (440)

December 23, 2022: 27-year-old trans woman Brauny Alcántara is beaten and drowned in a Santiago, Dominican Republic hotel room. (441)

The International Violent Hate Crimes project is a production of Antifa International - an international anti-fascist social media collective. Since 2014, Antifa International has broadcast news and information about anti-fascism and promoted the tenets of anti-fascism via social media to an audience of over 100,000 followers. You can find Antifa International on Instagram, Mastodon, Post, Tumblr, Twitter, and YouTube.

In 2017, Antifa International began monitoring and documenting hate-motivated violence worldwide via The International Violent Hate Crimes project. We believe it to be the most globally-comprehensive research project of its kind. We do this work as volunteers and without funding, which limits our capabilities and the scope of our research.

If you would like to support this project, we are accepting contributions at: bit.ly/intlhatecrimesresearch.

If you are a researcher interested in collaborating with us, please get in touch! antifaintl@protonmail.com
